

Nikolas' Journal

My hands were trembling and my heart stopped pumping blood for a second. I reluctantly opened the door and saw her. She looked horrible and said, "one rule is you must wake up at sunrise!" She went to the kitchen and told me to go to my room. A few minutes later, she told me to go to the table. She made a horrible looking soup and I tried it. It was horrible and my face turned green. She told me it was my turnip doll. She couldn't stop laughing and my nails dug into my hand. I was so angry and annoyed.

A few hours later, it was time for me to go to bed. I showed her my room but she told me to sleep outside! She threw me my blanket and I found a nearby tent to sleep in. I was so freezing, frost started forming on my hair. A few days past in the cold with no food. I decided to leave and find my father.
